

Hi Dr. K,

I just read your progress report on Chris...so great to hear! Does that include this week's exam? He was worried because he was confused by a few of the instructions, so that's great if he did better than expected! I thought he told me "part 2" is this upcoming week? As you know, he is working very hard, doing lots of review and preparation in his determination to put forth a good midyear report card for his top colleges to see. You have been an amazing mentor for Chris...really...he feels so comfortable with you and thinks you are one of the best teachers he has ever had. Congrats to you for achieving this during your first year at SHS...that is very impressive!

As for Chris, I will continue to "nag" him at home when I think he needs it, although that hasn't been the case in a long time. I hope you don't mind if I check in periodically and please feel free to email me too if Chris gets distracted or forgets to hand in an assignment, etc. Its still a challenge keeping the attention deficit under control!

Thank you again for your continued support, and happy, healthy holidays to you and your family!

Hi Dr. K,

WOW, a 95?! That is so great! I can't thank you enough for being such an outstanding teacher and mentor. We are so proud of our boy, and feel blessed that he landed in your class in his final year of high school.

Have a wonderful, extra long weekend!
